Senior officials from Peking and Sichuan province where the crash occurred have gone to the scene, the agency said.

In Tokyo, a Foreign Ministry spokesman said he had learned that a Japanese employee of Mitsubishi Heavy Industries waiting to meet a passenger on the plane had reported seeing a flaming aircraft explode and drop into a rice field.

Japan's NHK television network quoted a Japanese businessman from the Sumitomo group as saying he saw the plane explode in mid-air and burst into

The disaster was China's worst since April, 1982, when a Britishbuilt Chinese Trident crashed in bad weather on the way from Canton to the southern tourist resort of Guilin, killing all 112 passengers and crew. China's official media did not report yesterday's crash until almost 12 hours after it occurred at 10.15pm (14.15 GMT).

US vetoes UN draft deploring Israel

UNITED NATIONS, Jan 19, (Agencies): The United States vetoed a Security Council resolution yesterday strongly deploring "the repeated Israeli attacks against Lebanese territory" and other actions against the civilian population. Britain abstained on the resolution, which had the support of the council's other 13 members. Acting Lebanese Prime Minister Selim Al Hoss today expressed dismay over the US veto. Victim

"We cannot help regretting America's negativeness. The superpower that pretends to champion human rights insists on equating the aggressor with the victim," Hoss told reporters in Beirut. 'The United States has in fact submitted to Zionist blackmail when it voted in the highest UN forum ... against human rights," he added. The vetoed resolution would also have repeated previous calls for Israel's unconditional withdrawal from southern Lebanon, where it patrols a so-called "security zone", together with its allies of the South Lebanon Army (SLA) militia. This was the fourth resolution critical of Israel to come before the council in less than four weeks and the first to be blocked by a US veto. The latest round of debate was requested by Lebanon on Jan 7 but delayed for a week while council members tried unsuccessfully to draft a statement on the matter, instead of holding a for-mal debate.

Lebanon cited a number of recent Israeli air and land attacks against southern Lebanon in which it said dozens of Lebanese and Palestinians were killed.

Israel says the attacks were against commando installations, including those used by a Palestinian group to launch a hangglider attack against an Israeli Army camp last November in which six Israeli soldiers were killed.

US Ambassador Vernon Walters urged the council to recognise the reciprocal nature of the violence and the Arab role in the bloodshed.

"Continuing to review the situation in southern Lebanon without attendant concern for the security of northern Israel will have no consequence," he

Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady Gerasimov told a news briefing that a timetable for the visit was on the agenda at a meet-ing in Helsinki today between Soviet and Israeli representatives.

The purpose of the trip. Gerasimov said, would be "get ting to know the work of the Netherlands embassy Israeliinterest section" - which has looked after Israel's interests in Moscow since the Kremlin cut diplomatic relations 21 years

But the spokesman indicated that agreement to the visit was not a prelude to resumption of ties, broken as a gesture of solidarity with Arab countries during the 1967 Middle East war. "As for the question of restor-

Diplomats said recent travellers reported the key road leading into Khost from the west was lined with Soviet T-62 tanks, heavy artillery and major Soviet posts every 10-15 kilometres.

Khost itself 25 kilometres from the Pakistan border, was under the control of Afghan government troops, but they had to dodge sporadic rocket attacks by Muslim insurgents, the sources said.

Western diplomats said the Soviet-Afghan campaigns to recover the city and the new push around Kandahar may be intended to consolidate the Afghan Army's hold on strategic cities in the event of a settlement at UNsponsored peace talks next month.

Aden seeks return of Ali Nasser

MANAMA, Jan 19, (AP): South Yemen has demanded that North Yemen hand over former President Ali Nasser Mohammed to face execution, following his sentencing last month in absentia, the Gulf News Agency reported.

The agency, reporting from Aden, said the demand was contained in a statement issued by South Yemen's Supreme People's Council.

The statement said the extradition of Ali Nasser and others who were "fleeing justice . . . would be in line with international law and norms.

The council was chaired by its President, Heider Al Attas, who was named to replace Ali Nasser after the bloody, 12-day conflict between rival wings of the ruling Marxist party in South Yemen in January 1986.

Ali Nasser was sentenced to death last month along with 34 of his supporters after the supreme security court convicted them of "high treason." Of the 34, 19, including Ali Nasser, are living in exile along the mountainous border regions inside North Yemen.

Ali Nasser was once quoted as saying that some 40,000 supporters had joined him, threatening to use them to stir fresh fighting inside the Red Sea state.

As president, he had forged steps towards unity with North Yemen and the government of Al Attas is pledged to continue the same bid.

Khomeini appears in public

NICOSIA, Jan 19, (AP): Iranian Television on Monday showed Ayatollah Khomeini at a meeting of families of war victims, the first such appearance to be broadcast in more than a month.

On the same day, Iranian leaders met in Tehran to discuss Khomeini's decree that govern-ment has absolute power, a statement that gave weight to demands for economic reforms to help the poor.

The 87-year-old leader was shown seated on the balcony of his home in the northern suburb of Jamaran, listening to speeches delivered by officials. He did not speak.

When the meeting was over, Khomeini rose to his feet unaided and waved at the crowd before walking back into his home, as his son and close confidant Ahmad stood in the background.

Khomeini last appeared publi-cly Dec 15, a day after a report in the Times of London that he was seriously ill. In a broadcast of that appearance, he appeared frail, but on Monday he seemed reasonably fit for a man of his

NEW YORK, Jan 19, (AP): A potent storm dumped up to 60 centimetres of snow in the mountains of the west after hammering California's coast with large waves that destroyed a restaurant, washed away part of a hotel and damaged celebrities' beach homes.

At least seven deaths were blamed on the storm in California before it headed east. In addition, five people died on iceslickened highways in Missouri and six others died Monday in plane crashes linked to fog in four states.

More than 20 inches (50 cm) of snow fell at Monticello in southern Utah, while parts of Colorado and Arizona also were hit hard, the National Weather Service said. Up to 2 feet of snow fell in the Sierra Nevada range in northern California.

Three died when a private twin-engine plane crashed in dense fog and burst into flames near southern Illinois airport at Carbondale. One died and three were injured when a plane crashed in fog near Lambert airport in St Louis. One person died in a crash of a non-military plane near Little Rock Air Force base in Arkansas, and a private jet crashed in dense fog near Houston's Hobby airport, killing one person and injuring six, authorities said.

Snow caused delays and can-cellations at Denver's Stapleton airport and closed a section of Interstate 25 north of Denver.

About 100 vehicles were briefly stranded on a snow-clogged mountain pass in the Tehachapi mountains in southern California, the California highway patrol said.

Tigers storm jail and free 55 inmates

COLOMBO, Jan 19, (UPI): Tamil Tigers today stormed the jail in the eastern province capital of Batticaloa, disarmed the guards and freed 55 inmates on the fourth day of a rebel campaign that has disrupted civil administration in Tamil areas, police said.

The official said no guerrillas were being held at the facility as the LTTE had assaulted the jail three times since Tamil rebels launched their war in 1983 for independence for the northern and eastern provinces, where minority Tamils dominate. Immediately after the jail-was launched for the rebels and the escapees in Batticaloa, 225 km east of Colombo, by police and Indian troops deployed to enforce a July 29 Indo-Sri Lan-kan accord aimed at ending the civil war, the police official said.

The pact was accepted by smaller rebel groups, but the LTTE refused to disarm and has shifted the brunt of its operations to the eastern province after being forced out of its northern Jaffna peninsula stronghold by Indian troops in fighting that has left hundreds dead since Septem-

The LTTE Saturday launched a campaign to disrupt civil administration in the east and north, threatening to kill any government employees who reported to work in all but essential services, including mail, utilities and transportation.

Officials said the movement has been successful, with central government offices and courts in major towns and districts closed for a second day, their employees staying at home.

In Vavuniya, 190 km northeast of Colombo, the district military chief called a meeting of senior officials, civic and religious leaders, police and Indian Army officers to discuss ways of thwarting the LTTE

Amateur sleuths solve murder mystery

By Gail Seery

THE name Agatha Christie usually brings visions of halfsenile geriatric detectives. gruesome but very sanitary deaths, with unlikely murderers, who more often than not, are able to commit a great deal of self-damage and still have the presence of mind to thoroughly distort the evidence before fainting in pain. There has been something of a vogue for film adaptions of her work of recent years, and The Seven Dials Mystery is another in the Howeverit does differ a little. Christie specialised in the straight detective story where the solution of the murder was generally supposed to rest on the work of the "little grey cells" or by a study of human nature. This is one of her relatively few and, it has to be said, fairly inadequate attempts at producing a political thriller. Guess who the baddies are - "the Bolsheviks and the Germans."

The film opens with the usual Christie fashionable house party. Here we find Ronnie, Bill. Jimmy and Gerry and three stupid flappers, including Lady Oswald's cross-eyed squinting god daughter who takes "hours" to set eight set eight clocks at all is that Gerry Wade, one of the guests, is always so late getting up that they resolve to buy an alarm clock each and set it off, waking him up at 6.30 am.

The reason for her having to

Sir John Geilgud stars in The Seven Dials Mystery

From there the plot tumbles downhill still further into a mystery of murder, secret societies and amateur sleuths.

If that isn't enough for the Christie fan there are also industrial secrets to be sold, beautiful Hungarian countesses (well, only one really, played by Rula Lenska) and titled folk hiding in cupboards, which conveniently adapt from a linen cupboard in a room that is always secret hiding place. Don't ask why a secret room needs a linen cupboard, there isn't an ans-

The baddy is genuinely nasty. He has been selling secrets to foreign powers (yawn). "I didn't do it for the money," he avers. "I did it for the pleasure." Fair enough.

Of course, it's impossible to present an entirely straight adaption for an Agatha Christie novel in today's cinema. There is so little character delineation, and the reader is usually presented with onedimensional figures rather than believable personages. This doesn't matter so much on the page, as the main incentive to reading such a book is the puzzle itself. Christie is usually very good at this, and you have to read quite a few before you can detect the formula - you think of the person who couldn't have done it under any circumstances, and you almost certainly have the murderer.

The Seven Dials Mystery contains a suitably Christie twist at the end, and is lifted from banality by the participa-tion of Sir John Geilgud, who as usual, gets by mainly by appearing to play himself. Harry Andrews, who overplays his character so beautifully, and Cheryl Campbell who plays the incompetent "Bun-die" otherwise known as Lady Eileen, an amateur sleuth. In what must be one of the silliest lines of all time, she goes to Police Inspector Battle and says, "Can you give me a list of all the secret societies in Seven Dials?

The only mystery in the Indianapolis 500 coverage is that no-one took an axe to the film crew and commentators. This is motorsports coverage at its most absurd. The ABC team involved pares what action we could see to a very minimum. Gone are those tedious shots of cars going round and round the track - instead we are given a number of interviews with drivers' wives. "How are you feeling?" "Well, I was a bit nervous before the race, but I'm fine now." "So you're ok now?""Yes I'm ok now". I was very relieved to hear that. The suspense on that issue had been spoiling the race for me and countless other viewers. And they didn't present us with any of that incident-on-the-racetrack nonsense. When something important happens the camera is blissfully pointing the other way, possibly at some hapless car owner who stayed still long enough to be interviewed and then instantly misquoted, or else involved in a sneak raid on the Brazilian TV commentator, or the Japanese TV commentator. Come back Murray Walker, all is forgiven.

kept locked, into a suitable Mickey's hitman capers

By Brian Hollis

MICKEY Rourke is one of the hottest talents in Hollywood, but apart from Year of the Dragon, all of his big films have been banned in Kuwait for various reasons. His latest release. A Prayer For the Dying is all the more welcome as it also stars two other excellent actors, Bob Hoskins and Alan Bates.

Rourke plays a Northern Irish I.R.A. hitman, sickened by all the killing, who is persuaded to carry out a last murder on behalf of a London racketeer. Unfortunately a priest sees him gun down the victim in his parish cemetery and Rourke, in a moment of compassion, runs away. However, he later visits the priest in the confessional, and the latter s vows forbid him from revealing what he knows to the police. The racketeer, however, is afraid one of them will incriminate him, and orders them both eliminated. The plot is complicated by the fact that the I.R.A. also want to eliminate him, and by the priest's niece, a blind girl who falls for

The acting of the three principals is excellent, although Rourke's Belfast brogue sometimes slips into Scottish or English, and in spite of some highly unlikely coincidences. there's enough action and suspense to keep our interest up to

The unexpected international success of the French film 'Trois Hommes Et Un Couffin last year, has led to several imitations, two of which are riding high in the American box office. Baby Boom is a cute comedy starring Diane Keaton, which explores the world of the modern American career woman. Keaton is an upwardly mobile workaholic who has a convenient but emotionless home life with a fellow corporate bulldozer (Harold Ramis). When some English cousins die and

A Place At The Coast is a sensitive and beautifully shot Australian movie starring John Hargreaves and Heather Mitchell. A young teenager's widowed father falls in love with a young woman at a place on the coast where they had been coming for Christmas holidays for as long as young Ellie can remember. The new love affair and especially the fact that the woman is little older than herself, radically alters the relationship between daughter and father, and she is forced to discover that life was not meant to be fair. Essentially the film is more likely to appeal to women, although all frustrated romantics should find it quite watchable.

Zoot Suit is a strange U.S./ Mexican musical about a gang of Mexicans living in L.A. — a sort of Californian 'West Side Story.' The 1950's dance routines are quite entertaining and geneally the performances are okay.

If you just want a good laugh without any brainpower required, try some of the British comedy series such as the Lenny Henry Show, The Russ Abbot Show, or the Christmas special of 'Only Fools and Horses.'

Diane Keaton returns to her comic roots

When tiger lady becomes a super mum

What happens when a high-powered career lady inherits a 13-month-old baby out of the blue? The answer is hilarious chaos in the new film 'Baby Boom'.

But J. C. Wiatt tried to cope with her 'business-first' life and instant parenthood when she inherited a 13-month-old baby , and the result was chaos. The high-powered career lady discovered living in the fast lane did not combine well with her new responsibilities so she opted out and went to live in the country.

But her business sense was still strong and it positively glowed when her home-made apple-sauce baby food was napped up by eager upmarket tourists. The wheels began spinning and J.C. found she was running a booming gourmet baby food company.

tale is told in a new film called Baby Boom', starring Academy Award winner Diane

Delectable Diane returns to the comic roots of a career that has included some of the movie world's most memorable performances. She says she was immediately drawn to the role of J. C. Wiatt in Baby Boom'.

She said: "Here I was all by myself, and laughing out loud at the script. Realistic comedies, especially ones written for women, don't come along very often. And J. C. Wiatt really touched me and moved me emotionally. I felt for her.

"My character is a confident and successful woman when the film opens. But after this baby invades her very confident life, she falters for the first time, and it throws her way off balance and makes her more loving and lovable.

"By the end of the film, she's a richer, fuller human being. She still works, but she also has the capacity to love. It's the best possible combination.'

It is en route to the most important business meeting of her career that J. C. Wiatt dis-covers she has inherited a 13month-old baby girl. She exclaims: "I went to Yale and Harvard. I . . . don't have chil-

The Tiger Lady.
J.C. Wiatt's baby girl, Elizabeth is played by twins Kristina and Michelle Kennedy. Twins were needed because child labour laws limit a baby's working time to two hours a day. And they took to Diane immediately.

She visited the babies each day before filming began, first in New York and then in Vermont, to create a loving working relationship.

Diane would take one baby a day and spend several hours with her alone, walking and playing with her and getting to know her. She became a surrogate mother to the twins, behind as well as in front of the cameras. She would sing lullabies to them, feed them and keep them amused for close-ups.

She confessed that working with her tiny co-stars was:"The most fun I've ever had."

Diane continues: "I felt completely relaxed with them because it forced me out of my own self obsession and kept me spontaneous and alive.

Teaching the tiny tots stunts for 'Baby Boom', proved to be an interesting experience. They took more than 20 pairs of glasses home and were taught how to break them. Their performance on the set was quite a spectacle -

Putting Elizabeth to sleep on the set was a performance in itself. Diane sang lullables to them, the huge studio lights were dimmed and the burly electricians, sound men and camera crew were seen tip-toeing around the room. When the child fell asleep, the lights were raised slowly, one by one, the camera turned and the sound men whispered: "rolling".

Steve Guttenberg, Tom Selleck (centre) and Ted Danson are three busy urban professionals whose lives turn to bediam when a six-month-old turns up at their doorstep.

A magnum leap to stardom

By Ivor Davis

PALM SPRINGS, Calif.: "We all came into this thing with something to prove," says Steve Guttenberg, one of the troika of stars in Three Men and Baby, the new comedy from Disney's Touchstone Films that has all the earmarks of being a blockbuster. What he has to prove, Guttenberg explains, is that he can do more than play a rookie cop in Police Academy and its many sequels.

It isn't necessary to explain what Ted Danson and Tom. Selleck are trying to do. On any list of actors who need a hit movie, Selleck and Danson are Nos land 2.

While promoting the picture here recently, the irony of the situation became clear. Guttenberg, a successful film actor who works constantly, was present only as a voice on a satellite telephone from Ireland where he is filming another movie. But no one doubted that had he been there in the flesh he would not have generated as much excitement as would his two co-stars.

In the lobby of the Marriott Desert Springs Hotel tourists were falling over themselves to catch a glimpse of their TV heroes. If only it were as easy for Selleck and Danson to transfer that excitement to the big Selleck, best known from his starring role in TV's Magnum, P.I., has tried it three times in High Road to China (1983), Lassiter (1984) and Runaway (1984). All three movies failed to launch him as Hollywood's natural successor to Clark Gable, action man, hero. There was something too small about the 6-foot-4-inch glamour boy's personality for the big Likewise Danson, a stirring masculine presence in the NBC-TV sitcom "Cheers." He has failed to generate leadingman heat in the movies Little Treasure (1985), A Fine Mess 1986) and Just Between Friends (1986).

Both men are hoping that Three Men and a Baby will make the difference. Certainly should for Selleck, the papa bear of this womanising bachelor trio whose lives are turned upside down when a baby is left on their doorstep. Selleck comes across as sensitive, compassionate, warm and, more important, a compelling screen presence. Career

According to Selleck, his movie career has been bubbling along nicely. He insists his films have made money and led to bigger roles. "Each year I've had better and better offers." he says. "The years I didn't do films it was by choice. Also the three-month break I have during Magnum excludes a lot of

Some of that "stuff" was leading roles in Raiders of the Lost Ark and Silverado. But, he says, he is confident enough to have rejected numerous multipicture deals with studios. They're great for security and they make great headlines. But if you have faith in yourself it's better to be a free agent," he

The general feeling of box-office success hovering around his current effort, however, is boosting the already self-confident Selleck. ("Three Men and a Baby," which opened late last year, earned more than $10 million in its first week.)

"I don't like to count on anything," he says, "but it already seems to be doing good things for me as far as offers go.

"It has never been a question of my saying, 'Should I do this film next or that one? After 'High Road,' they asked me why I did two period pictures back-to-back. They were the best scripts I had at the time. Maybe now I'll plan more," he

Planning could mean a stint on Broadway in "Mister Roberts," something he relishes, but admits is a "terrifying Danson could use a dose or two of his "Cheers" character Sam Malone's cocky masculinity. But he too doesn't agonise long and hard about his lack of a movie blockbuster.

"I'm your basic neurotic actor, but I don't have any deep fears on that score. Basically, what I'm doing now is television. When I stop doing that I'll do movies and eventually something will hit," he says. Danson calls himself a realist. It takes energy to be a movie star, something the show's schedule doesn't leave him with much of.

When you do one show ("Cheers") for eight months a year you're not going to turn around and do a De Niro-like transformation during your hiatus. It's just not the time to do that," says Danson.
But there's nothing like working alongside Selleck, says Danson, to give what confidence you can muster a nasty jolt.

"You definitely take stock of your physical attributes when you stand next to Tom," he says, laughing. "There's definitely some ego-bashing going on internally. But it was great to feel insecure around him because that was appropriate for my character Jack in the Selleck plays Peter, an architect who takes in two roommates: Michael, a young, goofy cartoonist, and Jack, a narcissistic, insecure actor.

'He (Selleck) is the daddy Michael (Guttenberg) is the kid and I decided to be the leading lady," says Danson, "I drew on every feminine bit of me that I could muster — a lot of my mom ended up in Jack. He was as different from Sam Malone as he could be. If you counted hormones Sam is heavily on the male side; Jack has a lot of female stuff in him."

Protests

Selleck protests that those who would cast him as only a larger-than-life hero are missing the point. "I always wanted to play fathers," says Selleck. "I asked my agent to find me daddy parts, but she said they don't see me like that

The fact that "Three Men and a Baby" was an ensemble piece delighted him, he says.

"It's much more suitable for my background and training." says Selleck. "I've liked all the pictures I've done, but I wasn't looking for star vehicles. I'd take a supporting role. I'd take one scene if it was well-writ-

EVA Marie Saint was born on the Fourth of July and she is an American national treasure. She may never have commanded the salaries or attention garnished by the noisier glamour queens of the movies, but she has never given a bad performance and her sangfroid has helped elevate more than one less-than-spectacular

The list of her leading men ads uke a WIOS WIO' O theatre and film and stretches over several generations: Marlon Brando, Henry Fonda, Rod Steiger, Jason Robards, Montgomery Clift, Gregory Peck, Paul Newman, Cary Grant, Richard Burton, Warren Beatty, Bob Hope, Yves Montand, Jackie Gleason, Tom Hanks, Martin Sheen and Karl Malden. And her directors are no slouches either: Alfred Hitchcock, Vincente Minnelli. Delbert Mann and Elia Kazan, who saw her on Broadway in the early '50s in Horton Foote's The Trip to Bountiful (opposite Lillian Gish) and chose her to play the shy, convent-educated daughter of a longshoreman in On the Waterfront (1954). It was her first movie and her only Oscar (for Best Supporting Actress).

Today, at 63, Saint still uses her real name; is married to her first and only husband of 36 years, director Jeffrey Hayden; has her own face and figure, two grown children and one grandhild; and is hip enough to play ybill Shepherd's mom on

"Mooulighting."

"It's not just yuppies who watch that show," says Saint. Middle-aged people love it, even older people. It has the most incredible following." Saint promised herself never to do episodic television and she has stuck to it, so much so that when she was cast opposite Richard Kiley in last season's TV knew it had a good chance of becoming a series (which it eventually did) and requested that her character be killed off. "I knew it was good and that it might go on for five years," she says. "If that happened with me in it there would be many things I couldn't do."

Travel, for instance. She recently visited her hometown of Delmar, near Albany, N.Y., and found the six houses in which she

"I enjoy the freedom of being a free-lancer," she says. In fact, she will go anywhere, anytime to work in the theater, particularly if her husband is directing. "That's my favourite time in our marriage," she says, "when we're working together. 'It's the best of both worlds."

How was Saint persuaded to appear in "Moonlighting"?
"One day at lunch my agent said, 'Are you sure you won't do

"There are lovely scenes when she tells her father and me that she is pregnant. She and I communicate in a modern way, then I help my husband understand."

Discovered

Meanwhile, Saint discovered that weekly TV has its moments. "It's nerve-racking," she says, because you usually get the dialogue the day of the show or late the night before. So all you can do is jump in with both feet and somehow get through it. Then you begin to enjoy the excitement of being on the edge that way. Saint knew "Moonlighting" was popular, but had no idea how involved its audience is with

"I don't keep up with the ratings," she says " and it's not until you go out of town that you get this fantastic response and

One of the unexpected perks of her work on "Moonlighting," she says, was developing a friendship with Shepherd.
"I enjoy her so," she says. "I visited her before the twins arrived (Shepherd recently gave birth to real-life twins), but I had to leave to do a film in Dallas and she had them when I was away. She was so excited and she was surrounded by books on twins. She was taking good care of herself. She's a terrific lady. In Dallas, Saint filmed the TV movie "Breaking Home Ties," inspired by a Norman Rockwell painting of the same name, it tells the story of a Texas farm family in the '50s trying to deal with the departure of their only son for college. It also stars Jason Robards, Claire Trevor and Douglas McKeon

"Jason and I hadn't seen each other in six or seven years, although we've worked together before," she says. "We're like a couple of old bookends. He has this wonderful boyish sense of humour and he tells great stories. When you've worked with someone like that you pick up like old friends.

Early in her career Saint incurred the wrath of then-powerful Hollywood columnist ouella Parsons.

They were at an awards dinner in Hollywood when Jack Benny delivered a torrent of praise to introduce the young Saint. When she stood up to take a bow she was so nervous all she could utter was one tame - by today's standards - four-letter word. Most guests roared with laughter, but Parsons was so outraged that she used the episode to launch a savage vendetta against the Saint overcame that and another embarrassing incident her strapless bathing suit slipped down to reveal a topless Saint during a live TV play - to chalk up an amazing list of films, including "Raintree County" (1957), "Exodus" (1960), "All Fall Down" (1962)," The Russians Are Coming, The Russians Are Coming" (1966) and "Grand Prix" (1966). Awe

One co-star who inspired something akin to awe, she says, was George C Scott with whom she appeared in last year's TV The Last Days of Patton. "He was so professional," she says, "and it wasn't easy because we were filming the scene where Patton was dying in a hospital south of London. The location man must have thought it was a great spot, buy by the time we got there it was the tourist season and the planes were flying over from Heathrow Airport every couple of minutes. We would start these emotional scenes. then have to stop and start and again because of the noise."

QUESTION: What are water pills for? How do they work?

ANSWER: Water pills are diuretics, medications that make the body urinate more and lose excess water. It is odd that, in our language, vitamin pills give us vitamins, but water pills make us lose water. Diuretics also rid the body of excess salt.

Diurence are widely used to treat high blood pressure, which is common in this country. They also are used for people with heart failure because they reduce the amount of fluid the heart has to pump. Milder diureties are used by women who suffer premenstrual bloating.

There are three basic kinds of diuretics thiazides, loop diuretics and pottasium-sparing diuretics. Each works slightly diflerently, but they all cause the kidneys to work faster and put out more, but less-concentrated, urine. People on diuretics usually notice they urinate more, but the urine is Daler than normal.

WATER PILLS MAKE THE BODY LOSE EXCESS WATER

Loop diureties are very potent and must be used cautiously because they can cause dehydration, low blood presure and reduced potassium levels. Potassium-sparing diuretics don't reduce potassium levels severely, but they can cause impotence and menstrual disturbances.

Because of the risk of potassium depletion which can cause heartbeat irregularities), doctors often advise people who take diuretics to eat bananas, tomatoes or other foods high in potassium. Some people also must take prescription potassium supsomething different every day. ANSWER: It's true that the product aspartame (NutraSweet) has been in the press quite a bit lately. It was even the subject of an investigation by the General Account-ing Office of the United States, which sought to verify the process by which the FDA approved the product for general use. The GAO issued a 100-page report that gives us some indications to help answer your ques-tion. It found that the process by which the FDA approved the product as safe was indeed proper. In addition the GAO stated that the FDA is conducting adequate follow-up studies to monitor the safety of aspartame's use. Because all seemed in order on these two counts, the GAO made no recommendations.

But the controversy may not be over. Twenty-eight out of 69 scientists responding to the GAO questionnaire said they felt more research was needed in areas of neurological function, brain tumors. seizure, headaches and adverse reactions in children and pregnant woman. The FDA stated that it believed aspartame was shown to be safe, and that therefore more research in these areas, although useful, was not needed to demonstrate safety.

Dream of recovering control of China fades

By Dan Biers

TAIPEL, (AP): President Chiang Ching-Kuo carried to the grave a fervent desire to recover control of his mainland China homeland, but the intense commitment to that goal is likely to die with the passing of Taiwan's ageing leaders.

The nationalist Chinese government arrived in Taiwan 39 years ago after losing a civil war to the communists on the Chinese mainland.

Chiang Kai-Shek, who led the retreat to Taiwan, was obsessed with recapturing the mainland, and after his death in 1975 his son, Chiang Ching-Kuo, took up the standard.

The prospect of military battle with the huge People's Liberation Army discouraged an armed return, however, and Taiwan instead channeled its energies into developing one of Asia's healthiest economies.

The Chiang family and many of the two million people who fled with them to Taiwan remained dedicated to the goal of returning, on their own terms, to the land where they were born and raised.

That lingering goal was stated forcefully in Chiang Ching-Kuo's will, which was released when he died at age 77 of heart

"If I were restrained by the years given by heaven ... all people and military personnel in our nation should unite and strive together, speed up recovering the mainland, and complete the mission of reunification of China under the three principles of the people," the principles of nationalism, democracy and people's livelihood espoused by Sun Yat-

Sen, the father of modern China. But Chiang's death highlights a demographic fact: the Chinese who arrived after the civil war and dream of returning home are

But for native Taiwanese and the younger generation, who have seen their standard of living shoot up in recent years as the economy has boomed, reuniting with a backward communist China is not appealing.

Beijing authorities have said declaration of an independent Taiwan could prompt them to retake the island by other than peaceful means.

Still, forces are at work that could make reunification possible, although not for years, probably not for decades.

If China follows its currentpolicy of capitalist-style economic reforms and opening to the West, the ideological gap could close. And if Taiwan follows its current policy of increasing con-tacts with China, the distrust and suspicion developed since the civil war could begin to melt.

Once that occurs, however, the talk in Taiwan will not be about recovering the mainland but whether a reunification can be worked out acceptable to both

Hostage negotiator a hostage himself

LONDON, (AP): A year ago, today, Terry Waite vanished in Beirut while trying to make contact with Shi'ite Muslim extremists holding two Americans hostage.

It was the Anglican church emmisary's first trip to Lebanon in efforts to solve the hostage crisis. He was prepared for the

He left instructions with the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Most Rev. Robert Runcie, the Church of England's spiritual leader barring any rescue attempt or ransom payment if he was kidnapped. Waite, 48, father of four, had talked about stepping down as Runcie's personal envoy.

Pressure Hostage negotiation "is not a job you can do forever," he said. "It's not a level of acceptable pressure that you can live with for the next 20 years."

His disappearance remains a mystery. No group claimed responsibility for kidnapping him. No photographs of Waite or messages from him emerged.

But church officials including Runcie, say they believe he is alive, citing recurrent press reports and other sources.

Over the weekend; London Sunday Express quoted Sheikh Mohammed Hussein Fadlallah as saying that Waite and other foreign hostages were being treated properly, but there could not be any progress toward free-ing them until after President Reagan leaves office.

Fadialiah, spiritual head of the pro-Iranian Shi'ite Hezbollah group, denied giving an interview to the Sunday Express. Nevertheless, observers in the Middle East said Fadlallah had made similar remarks in interviews with Arabic publications recently.

The 230-pound (104-kg) sixfoot-seven (two-metres) Waite was last seen leaving the Riviera hotel on West Beirut's seafront on Jan 20, 1987.

Waite already had helped to free three Americans — the Rev. Benjamin Weir, the Rev. Lawrence Jenco and David Jacobsen — and was reported to be principally seeking freedom for their two countrymen. Waite was first sent to Beirutin late 1985 after four US hostages wrote to Runcie seeking his help in winning their freedom.

Skilful He had made his mark as a skilful negotiator by persuading Iranian leader Ayatollah Khomeini to free three British missionaries held in Iran in 1981.

Hong Kong: China's goose that lays the golden eggs China has shown an eagerness capitalisation before the market

By James L. Tyson

HONGKONG: There's no wall around Hong Kong's "Walled City" slum, but for nearly a century diplomatic barriers have kept out even Britain's most messianic empire builders.

Since Britain gained control from China over all of the colony except the ghetto in 1898, fugitives, drug, peddlers, prostitutes, and crime syndicates have found refuge in the 11 acres of alleyways and dilapidated buildings. British rulers left the slum alone, since they did not wish to pique the territorial pride of China, which refused to negotiate the slum's status because it considers British rule over the colony illegitimate.

But last month, as a result of secret Sino-British talks, the Hong Kong government approved funds to raze the slum and turned it into a park.

The greening of the Walled City is a bright sign of unprecedented Sino-British rule to China in 1997. The colony has needed such a fillip for public confidence in the transition from colonial to communist control. Disillusioned

Only in November last year Britain disillusioned supporters of democracy in Hong Kong when it deferred to Peking and reneged on a pledge to allow direct elections next year. Activists believe democratic institutions are needed to ensure that China honours its pledge to uphold Hong Kong's freemarket system under the princi-"one country, two sys-

Ian Scott, professor of political science at Hong Kong eased the jitters but further undermined its own credibility by using tax revenues to help rescue the futures exchange. Western diplomats agree. And in an article in the latest issue of the Harvard International Review, Sir David Wilson, Hong Kong's governor, admits insecurities may be justified. "It is natural that questions should be asked about the viability of communism and capitalism coexisting," he said. 'But I believe that those questions can be and are being satisfactorily answered.'

Freedom

Peking has tried hardest to answer these fears. The Bank of China contributed $42 million to the $512 million "lifeboat" for the futures exchange. Some Chinese officials inadvertently offered the clearest indication that they intend to uphold Hong Kong's laissez-faire ethos: They lost money. Analysts estimate that China-owned institutions held about 10 per cent, or about debacle.

But there are other signs that Peking's central planners recognise that the prosperity of one billion Chinese depends at least in part on the continued freedom of the 5.6 million residents of Hong Kong. It is estimated that 29 Chinese provinces have invested heavily in various sectors of the colony. China has registered some 35 companies accounting for 20 per cent of the total foreign investment in manufacturing, behind only the United States and Japan. It manages 13 department stores and six supermarkets. And the Bank of China in 1989 plans to move into a new headquarters - the tallest structure in Asia designed by I. M Pei in the heart of the business district.

Like Hong Kong Chinese, open-minded Peking officials are quick to call the colony China's "goose that lays the golden eggs." Two-thirds of China's foreign investment and 30 per cent of its exports pass through a few years, it has expanded the number of its Hong Kong officials from a few thousand to more than 10.000, forming a shadow communist government that parallels aspects of the current colonial administration.

A very slow move toward colour-blindness in court

Africa ended 1987 on a somber note, with a series of executions that brought the year's total to 164 — the highest since 1910. But there was perhaps a tiny ray of light: evidence of a possible move toward colour-blindness in the courts and on the scaffold. Among the 164 men hanged were nine whites, including two executed for their role in raping and murdering black women. Their executions may have marked a slight shift away from what is widely seen as racial bias in South Africa's legal order. In an article written before the execution of the two men for crimes of violence against blacks Prof. John Dugard of the University of the Witwatersrand said: "Let us be honest enough to admit that the South African system of sentencing is not perfect and, therefore, must inevitably on occasions be guilty of racial

In his writings, Dugard has identified two areas where there is evidence of bias against blacks: interracial homicides and assaults, and interracial sexual offences. "No white has yet been hanged for the rape of a black, and only about six whites have been hanged for the murder of blacks," he says'. While, "blacks convicted of the murder or rape of whites are usually executed." Consciousness

Gilbert Marcus, a colleague of Dugard's, offered a cautious assessment of the significance of the recent hanging of the two whites. "There is growing consciousness of the necessity to be colour-blind in sentencing." Prof. Marcus had earlier pointed out that the number of executions are disproportionately higher for blacks than whites. Of the 164 men hanged in 1987, only nine were white. The rest were either black (110) or mixed-race Coloureds (45). Blacks outnumber whites in South Africa three to one. Of the executions in 1987. 21 were hanged in batches of seven on three consecutive days barely two weeks before Christmas. Their deaths drew little press attention: the largest daily paper reported the 21 hangings in three brief sentences.

MY father's stock philosophical comment used to be, Well, everything is relative."
It's a near little observation that ounds good and covers all the bases. I've learned that it can be a pretty useful phrase. I've also learned that nothing seems to be quite as relative as pain.

Thankfully, I haven't been a victim of pain too often, but often enough to be able to distinguish between the Real Thing, Lesser Agony, and Minor Misery. Needless to say. whenever I suffer, it's always due to the Real Thing. I know, because anything that shatters my normally high pain tolerance must be pretty bad. With my experience, I resent it tremendously when anyone questions my degree of

The ultimate example of this came from the mouth of my loving spouse ... someone who really should have known better than to challenge my authority. What's more, if he wanted to get into a discussion on the matter, he should have shown a much better sense of timing. But, no, Mr Bold chose the imminent birth of our first child for his dialogue.

"Kathy, this is only the beginning of your labour and already you're grimacing. You'll never make it through to the end if you can't handle the early stages."

Suggestion

"I'm grimacing, light of my life, because it feels like a bolt of ightening has just hit my abdomen. Believe me, if I thought I had an option I'd pack it in for today and try again tomorrow. Better still, we could do this little exercise in

The last suggestion kept him in_line for awhile, until his curiosity got the better of him. Tell me, Kath, is this worse than the time you had your tooth pulled at the dentist? Or the time you tore the ligaments in your leg?" Hasn't be just got the neatest turn of phrase? The final crunch came with his diagnosis that my real problem was a low pain tolerance. Sheesh. What can you do with someone who has absolutely no concept of the Real Thing? Some genius hit the nail on the head with the quote, "Man endures pain as an undeserved punishment; woman accepts it as a natural heritage." We're probably referred to as the weaker sex because no one actually knows how much we have to put up with. We stoically bear our frequent aches and pains because there's just not time to sit around and moan. Who would prepare the lunch boxes or find the missing school shoes? Who would write notes to the teachers ... or letters to the in-laws? And who would look after sick men?

I know pain is relative, but how painful can a cold be? Does the victim of a stubbed toe really have to have his dinner brought to him because he can't move from the couch in the TV room where his leg is propped

Of course, these aches and pains are seldom bad enough to bother a doctor. Just bad enough to keep the little woman in constant attendance. Pain is supposed to be a physical thing, but a lot of times it's heightened by the imagination - either our own or someone else's. If we have an affliction which everyone insists is "so painful," we feel a certain obligation to express our suffering a little more audibly, even if it's not all that bad. On the other hand, we sometimes endure more discomfort than necessary, simply because the malady sounds serious enough to be worthy of at least Lesser Agony. I recently suffered a tennis injury that a doctor diagnosed as a sprained ankle. When, after 3 1/2 weeks, it didn't improve, I sought a second opinion and learned that I had a cracked bone, torn ligaments and pulled muscles.

"You're one tough lady to have put up with all that without treatment,"said the doctor. All what? I thought I only had to recover from a slight sprain, and that's kid stuff. Now that I know what's really wrong. though, I have leaped from Minor Misery to the Real Thing.

Pleasure

Every once in a while, pain (someone else's of course) can give a little bit of pleasure. For sometime my husband suffered terribly (so he says) from tennis elbow. Desperate for a cure, he finally resorted to acupuncture. The affliction even defied this treatment, so the acupuncturist resorted to rather extreme methods: sticking bits of wood in the elbow and then letting them burn. Gruesome. As the perspiration glistened on my husband's face and he contorted his features into painful grimaces, I whispered a little observation, "I think what we have here is a case of low pain tolerance. The shock took his mind off his elbow. Then he gave a weak smile and muttered, "Touche."

My husband doesn't complain about tennis elbow anymore. I'm not sure if it disappeared by itself or if he just has the problem in better pers-

Contemporary Turkish carpets are made by local masters who use materials and designs characteristic of the region in which they work. After careful checking for quality and a first washing, these carpets enter the domestic and foreign markets through the hands of famous dealers.

. Until recent times all artifacts had to be handmade, but modern technology and mass production have replaced skills and techniques traditional for thousands of years. In our day handmade works are rare, and among them are the beautiful and functional knotted carpets made using traditional methods developed for over 2000 years.

Carpets, whose weaving can take months or even years of skill and effort, are pieces that can be kept and handed down from one generation to another, gaining in value as their antiquity increases. Each region has its own techniques A tradition developed and perfected over 2000 years

The methods of manufacture and the different raw materials used produce distinctive carpets, characteristic of the region in which they are woven. Handmade knotted carpets are used for various purposes by the local people in their region of origin. Besides being used as rugs, carpets serve such purposes as tent screens, paintings, cradle and sofa covers, wall hangings, and prayer rugs.

For the last century or more, handmade knotted carpets have been a subject of research for experts and art historians. Great numbers of books and journals have appeared on the subject, showing that the making of handmade carpets is an important art form. The spread of knowledge through such publications has caused an increased demand for fine car-

Authorities conclude that the making of knotted carpets. produced in an area extending from the Mediterranean coast of Turkey to the steppes of Central Asia, was introduced by Turkish nomadic tribes and craftsmen. Traditional Turkish carpet making with its distinctive techniques, materials, pat-terns, and knotting has had a great influence upon all Oriental carpets. In art history books, one comes across carpets that date back to the ancient Persian, the Pharaohs, and the Caliphs. However, these were not knotted carpets, but were rugs woven using the sim-ple "towel technique" instead of knotting.

The hard-wearing doubleknotted carpets are the invention of Turkish tribes. The techniques found in handmade carpets were brought to the Mediterranean coast by the Seljuks in the 12th century. Marco Polo mentions rich ex-

ing is to have a pattern or a design. Master weavers do not volves the choice of material.

Materials used differ according to type and region. The material of a carpet may be wool, pure silk, floss silk, or cotton.

The pure silk of Turkish car-so as to get a velvet-like soft surface. Thus the motifs are made up of thousands of individual knots. The tighter the knots, the finer and stronger is the carpet. The pleasure one gets from a beautiful carpet equals the pleasure one gets. from a beautiful picture. The double knot, known as the Turkish or Gordes knot, is used in all typical Turkish carpets. Another well-known system is the Sehna or Persian knot. The Turkish knot is wrapped around two warps and the Persian knot around a single warp. A kilim, which is similar to a carpet, is woven on the loom but with a different technique; knots are not used and it is woven normally.

The Gordes knot makes a carpet stronger, firmer and more durable, while the Sehna knot allows the weaving of varied patterns. However, once a carpet is made it is difficult to determine the knotting

The colours also are characteristic of the region where the carpet is made. The threads used in the weaving of antique carpets were used to be dyed with natural dyes known only by the family that manufactured the carpet. Today chemical dyes are used along with vegetal dyes. Natural dyes are produced from leaves, roots, and fruits. Many of the villages engaged in carpet making have a grazing land called "Boyalik". Plants from which dyes are produced are grown there. The various formulae for dye production have been passed down from generation to generation. Thus the colours traditional to Turkish carpet making have survived till our day. Red is dominant in Turkish carpets. This striking colour expresses wealth, joy and happiness. Green symbolises heaven; blue nobility and grandeur, yellow is believed to keep evil away, and black symbolises purification from worries.

Handmade carpets are generally called after the region or town where they are manufactured. Contemporary carpets are made in various sizes and with combinations of various materials. In some regions, the threads used in weaving and the knots may be only wool, and in some other regions, the base may be cotton and the knots wool. In other regions pure silk is used in the weaving of carpets.

Dimensions

and nomenclature Handmade carpets that can be used as rugs, wall hangings, and divan covers are manufactured in various sizes. Different names are given to carpets of different sizes. Although the names given according to size are the same for all regions, the carpets, because they are hand made, may show minor differences of dimension. While some regions manufacture carpets of all sizes, others manufacture carpets in standard sizes. Whatever the size is, a handmade carpet brings beauty and elegance to the place where it is used. Two or three handmade carpets laid over wall to wall carpeting will add colour to the rooms. Standard dimensions in centimetres: Small yastik (pillow) 40×25 100 x 60 135 x 90 Ccyrek Seccade (prayer rug)

A unique experiment with handicapped children

By Catherine Foster

LEXINGTON, Mass.: The video being shown to visitors to the Boston Higashi School shows a three-year-old Japanese girl labelled austistic who cries inconsolably and kicks and screams when the teacher tries to get her to put on her shoes. Nine years later, however, the same girl, Urara. is playing the xylophone in the Boston Higashi band, greeting visitors with poise, and happily confiding that she wants to write children's books when she grows up.

What's behind Urara's transformation is an educational philosophy that refuses to accept limitations for autistic children. It was developed by a Japanese woman 22 years ago.

The woman, Kiyo Kitihara, found soon after starting a kindergarten in Tokyo in 1964 that one of the children was considered autistic. Knowing little about the problem, she taught him as she did the others and took him home with her for further care. "I learned everything about autism from him.

When other mothers asked if she would take their autistic children, she agreed, since there were no other schools. Her kin-dergarten, the Musashino Higashi Gakuen (school). expanded to include all grades through high school. Since its founding, the school has taught 4,800 autistic students. It has been hailed as having a progressive approach to coping with

In medical terms, autism is a developmental disorder. Children diagnosed as autistic (3 out of 4 are boys) are seen as anxious, hyperactive, unable to speak, and out of touch with reality. Eighty per cent are considered mentally retarded. Drugs are sometimes used to control hyperactivity; occasionally helmets and gloves are worn to protect the children from their own flailing fists. Behaviour modification that uses positive reinforcement - and sometimes the more controversial aversive therapy - is a main form of treatment. Autism is believed to education for autistic children," she says. Employing neither psycho-ther-apy nor drugs, her Daily Life Therapy includes lots of physical activity (dancing, marching, to Japanese martial music, running). The exercise helps the children sleep better at night, she says, so they can concentrate the next day on learning their tasks. They also learn to play wind instruments to help with physical dexterity and vocalisation. Music and physical exercises are normal fare in Japan-ese elementary education.

Some United States students attended the school's international branch. Kitihara decided to move it to the US at the request of a group of American parents. The Boston Higashi School, which opened last month, has 93 pupils, 60 of them American.

Arthur Golden, whose son attended Musashino Higashi Gakuen, is one of the founders of the Boston Trust for Autism, a group devoted to helping parents of autistic children. He says he thought Kitihara's approach was one of the few that held out hope. "She has much higher expectations. I felt that making the programme available to as many children as possible ... was a matter of saving lives."

A group of interested US doctors and educators helped pave the way in Massachusetts for the Boston Higashi School. They found the recently closed Maria Hastings School to house it and built a dormitory in a nearby town. Tuition, set by the state, is $16,583 for day students. The rate for residential students has not been set, nor does the school have state approval for the residential ргодгатте.

As the tiny, smiling principal shepherds visitors around this former elementary school, it is clear her confidence in the children's abilities and refusal to accept limitations has yielded remarkable results.

Several children run up and throw their arms around her. They used to cringe when touched, she says. A class of kindergartners sits quietly watching their teacher draw on the blackboard and sing. When school started a few weeks ago, she says, they couldn't make eye contact.

Children with weak legs and lack of coordination are now roller skating in the gym. That is the only place, Kitihara says, that you'll ever see helmets at the school.

At a school assembly, students gather onstage in powder blue outfits to play their recorders and sing "My Way," in harmony. Public performances are a major part of Kitihara's programme. The videotape of the school in Japan shows a massive performance by all members of the school, dressed in dazzling silver outfits. This helps them with self-confidence, says Takako Oe, Kiti hara's translator.

In Kitihara's school, children are taught in groups of 10 with one or two teachers, rather than the conventional one-toone method of teaching autistic children, which she says encourages dependence. The teachers are on the run constantly, correcting myriad forms of behaviour and keeping the children involved. They're also dedicated; in Japan they often work 60 hours a week.

The Kitihara approach is also unconventional in that it mixes autistic and nonautistic students, so that the autistic children will learn to imitate normal actions.

"It stabilises their emotions to give them stimulation from other children," says the foun-der. To provide role models, she has brought over 33 of her most functional Japanese autistic students. These older students, in addition to taking classes, act as house parents in the dormitory and do maintenance around the school.

The approach is not univer-sally hailed. Some researchers privately wonder if Kitihara is getting such good results because she is screening out physically handicapped chil-

"I value it for what it has to offer but don't think it would work for everybody," says Amy Lettick, founder of Belhaven, a school for autistic children in New Haven, Conn.

Dr Fred Volkmar, assistant professor at the Child Study Centre at Yale University, says, "The fundamental problem is, to really know if a treatment works you have to evaluate it scientifically. I also question its being so cast within the Japanese culture. That's not to say that some things wouldn't be helpful."

Dr Bernard Rimland, founder of the Autism Society of America and director of the Institute for Child Behaviour Research, went to Musashino Higashi Gakuen with three other researchers. "We went with a great deal of skepticism and came away feeling like she had a good programme. We had suspected the kids weren't really autistic, but found some very severe cases and did see kids who had been severely affected, functioning at much higher levels than we had anticipated."

One seven-year-old Ohio girl, Miriam Kuzecki, would not eat when she went to the school in Japan. "At one point it didn't look like she'd make it," said her mother, Paula Kiyo Kitihara with pupils at the Higashi school. She believes every child has the potential to develop and grow.

Kuzecki, in a phone interview. "I think the school saved her life. She couldn't stand to be touched, now she loves affection. And she plays with her brother and sisters, which she never did before."

Toshiko Lyons, a mother of one of the older students, came over from Japan to help out at the school answering phones. Her son was 19 when she heard of Musa-shi-no Higashi Gakuen. At first Kitihara did not want to take him because of his age, she says. But after several requests, the boy was accepted.

"There was a drastic change in his behaviour," says Mrs Lyons. "Before no one could control him. He turned right around as soon as he got to the school (in Japan) and now they're training him to be a

But the staff noticed he was always tapping his fingers. So they taught him piano. Now he plays a difficult selection by Mendelssohn for visitors. Later he introduces himself and talks briefly. While Kitihara says younger children make the most progress, she does not put limits on what any child is capable of doing. Free trade pact will help coordinate investment strategy

OTTAWA, Jan 19. (Kuna): Canada's Prime Minister Brian Mulroney has accepted the challenge of his adversaries by vowing to make the next Canadian elections a test of the acceptability of the historic free trade pact signed this month by Canada and the United States.

Announcing his resolve to test the deal at the polls, Mulroney said on Tuesday, "We're going to run on it and we're going to ask the Canadian people to endorse what we believe will be a new era of prosperity and fairness and equality of opportunity for our regions." The free trade deal was signed on Jan 1 by Mulroney and President Reagan. Products

Over the next 10 years, it will not only banish tariffs on most products but also coordinate investment policies, oil distribution and the financial lives of the two countries.

Supporters see a future of cheaper consumer products for Canadians while detractors see a massive loss of jobs with major industries fleeing south to the United States. Critics also warn of an irrevocable loss of Canadian control over its own affairs which would be akin to annexation by the United States.

Mulroney derided opposition critic John Turner for criticising the trade pact without coming up with a viable alternative for a future in which the United States will be more protectionist. You've got to tell people not what you are against, but what you are for," said Muironey.

The worned liberal opposition decided on Tuesday to sent its star member of parliament. Lloyd Axworthy to lobby Congressmen in Washington so they will turn down the deal. Both Congress and the Canadian parliament will have to ratify the pact before it becomes law. · Polis

In Canada, the polls show Canadians are evenly divided over the present pact, but they also show that most Canadians clearly support the concept of a free trade deal in principle, although they distrust Mulroney's version of the pact. Over the next few months. Canada's entire political life will revolve around the central question of the deal's impact on this country.

STOCKHOLM, Jan 19, (Reuter): Some 50,000 white collar workers demanding wage rises above Sweden's five percent inflation rate went on strike today, severely disrupting indus-trial production and ignoring government pleas for modera-

The strike by members of the SIF private sector white collar union was designed to hit most of the country's main industrial companies — including car-maker AB Volvo, heavy engincering concern Asea AB, auto and aircraft maker Saab-Scania AB and appliance manufacturer AB Electrolux alt is obviously the first major strike in the current wage round and as such it is a serious opening shot," said Mary Foster, a Sweden specialist with London brokers ARK Securities.

Union officials said their strike call was fully supported by the membership, as is generally the case with Sweden's highly organised labour movement.

Company officials said the effect of the strike would be almost immediate.

Volvo said its production line would be hit within hours and no attempt would be made to maintam operations partially.

Traders on the Stockholm bourse largely ignored the stoppage, pushing prices up sharply in early trading in reaction to Friday's better-than-expected US trade figures.

The strike came a week after the Social Democratic govern-ment presented an annual budget warning of serious balance of payments problems if wages rose by more than inflation.

According to the government, average wage rises of seven per cent would lead to Sweden's current account balance of payments deficit more than quadrupling in the next two years to 21 billion crowns ($3.5 billion).

Despite five years of economic expansion

Debt crisis has worsened, says World Bank

WASHINGTON, Jan 19. (Reuter): The global debt crisis has intensified during the past year despite five years of economic expansion in the wealthy countries that should have reduced financial pressures, the World Bank said today. In one of its gloomiest assessments since the debt crisis began in 1982, the bank said conditions could worsen in the period ahead because of growing economic problems in the industrial countries.

The observations were contained in the bank's annual debt analysis for developing countries, which showed that total debt had continued to pile up last

Problem "The debt problem has not begun to near a solution. By many measures, it has worsened," the bank's international economics director Jean Baneth told reporters at a briefing. The World Bank estimated total developing country exter-nal debt at $1.19 trillion at the end of last year, up 6.25 per cent from 1.12 trillion in 1986. It projected that it would rise to $1.25 trillion this year, mostly because of the decline in the dollar against other currencies. It said that while the outlook for new help for sub-Saharan Africa had improved, the mid-dle-income debtor countries of Latin America continue to face a dismal future.

"The outlook on their debt positions remain very bleak, amid signs of growing frustration and fatigue at the lack of progress from debtors and creditors alike," the bank said.

The lending agency continued to defend the debt plan unveiled over two years ago by US Treasury Secretary James Baker, and said that the crisis must be treated on a country-by-country basis, the backbone of debt strategy up to now.

However, the bank made it clear that new measures are urgently needed to deal with the deteriorating situation in many It said that without new help, the democracies of Latin America could face political upheaval and that cooperation between debtor and creditor countries could collapse. Crisis '(The debt crisis) threatens the survival of several new and fragile democracies, and more broadly of regimes that eschew confrontation in favour of cooperation." Raneth said. The report said that while the bank did not foresee a recession at a global level in 1988, economic activity will be less robust than last year.

"In any case, global economic activity is certainly going to slow down this year and is very likely to slow down again in 1989," Baneth said.

In the past, it had been expected that continued economic expansion would help poorer states to cope with their debt problems by providing markets for their goods in the wealthy industrial countries, particularly the United States.

initiative Treasury Secretary Baker, in his debt initiative, had proposed that commercial banks and the development banks, including the World Bank, increase funding to allow the debtor states time to grow out of their problems. But despite five years of growth in the wealthy countries, debtors have shown little measurable progress of the kind

Innovations

Baker envisioned

Baneth described the recent decision by the US Treasury to sell Mexico non-interest-bearing bonds to back new securities that the country will exchange for discounted commercial bank debt as innotive and significant. But it was not a historic measure that would profoundly change the shape of the debt crisis, Baneth told reporters.

"I don't think that when one looks back at the debt picture 10 years hence, we shall look at it as before and after the Mexican plan," he said.

For this reason, he said that other innovations for dealing with the crisis were still badly

"It is urgent to devise further additions to the menu, capable of reducing the resource flows indebted countries must channel to their creditors, so as to allow them to boost their imports. investments and consumption levels," Baneth said.

Looking at the numbers, the bank reported that new loans minus principal repayments totalled $26 billion in 1987, but debt service exceeded new loans by $29 billion, a slight improvement over 1986.

The following World Bank table outlines the debt burden carried by eight major debtor countries. The first column shows total debt outstanding in 1987. Japan's trade surplus declines

TOKYO, Jan 19, (AP): Japan's global trade surplus fell nearly $3 billion last year, from $82.7 billion to $79.8 billion, the Finance Ministry announced yester-

William Sterling, a senior economist with Merrill Lynch Securities Co. in Tokyo, said the $2.9 billion decline represents a dramatic shift in Japan's trade, and shows that Japan is carrying out its promise to reduce its dependence on exports and expand imports.

The ministry said the trade surplus fell slightly in December from the same month in 1986, although the surplus with the United States increased by $169

Toyota and Nissan exports drop

TOKYO, Jan 19, (Reuter): Japan's two biggest car makers today announced a slump in last year's export figures with most of the drop in the United States, where the stronger yen has forced them to raise prices.

Toyota's exports fell more than five per cent in 1987, to 1.77 million vehicles, while those of Nissan dropped more than 10 per cent, to 1.17 million, the companies announced in separate statements.

The drop in exports mainly occured to the United states, where the strong yen forced Japanese automakers to raise prices and lose sales. Both companies were able to increase shipments to Europe slightly.

Competitiveness "The strong yen reduced our competitiveness in the United States because we had to increase prices," a Toyota spokesman said in a telephone interview.

The company raised suggested retail prices of its 1988 models in the US by an average of 1.4 per cent, or $163, from January 15.

Although the yen has risen sharply against the dollar since mid-1985, it has remained more or less steady against European currencies, enabling Japanese car makers to retain their competitive edge in the European market.

Toyota's exports to the United States fell more than 12 per cent last year to 906,739 vehicles, but those to Europe rose about oneand-a-half per cent, to 412, 913.

Nissan's exports to the United States dropped nearly 19 per cent to 547,779 vehicles last year, while shipments to Europe rose three per cent to 401, 177.

Oil prices may steady despite Opec discounts

TOKYO, Jan 19, (Reuter): Opec member countries are engaged in a vicious price-cutting war, but a free-fall in oil prices may be avoided because they are basically sticking to agreed production limits, oil industry sources said today. The sources said that despite under-the-counter discounts being offered by Opec countries, there was a growing feeling the organisation would stick to the official price of $18 a barrel in the second quarter of this year. The Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries (Opec) set itself a production ceiling of 15.06 million barrels per day (bpd) for the first half of 1988, excluding Iraq which produced 2.6 million bpd in December.

A Reuter survey estimated Opec production in the first half of January fell to around 17 million bpd from the December level of around 18.3 million. "If Opec can contain production at the current level until the end of February, then I think they can start thinking about moving back to official prices," said one oil analyst. Opec members Iran, Iraq, Kuwait and Qatar are selling crude to Japan at prices linked to the free market, where oil is selling at about $2 below official Opec prices. Saudi Arabia, the largest and most powerful member of the 13-country oil group, has refused to cut its oil price to Japan though it is reported to be selling at market-linked prices to oil companies in the United States. Abn Dhabi, another big Opec producer, has told foreign companies producing oil in the country they must pay official prices but will give Japanese customers small retroactive discounts on December and January shipments, the sources said. "One thing is consistent — the short fuse on which they are offering discount prices," said a trader for a major oil company. 'Opec appears so far to have agreed to sell its oil at a chear price as far abead as March. "I can only assume they're all a bit afraid of each other and what will happen if one agrees to cut prices for several months ahead," the analyst said. Oil prices plunged below $10 in 1986 after Opec countries agreed to sell at market-linked prices for six-month periods.

Prison terms urged for two Toshiba Machine executives

TOKYO, Jan 19, (AP): The prosecution today urged one-year prison terms for two former executives of Toshiba Machine Co. charged with illegally selling high-technology milling machines to the Soviet Union. Ryuzo Hayashi, 53, a manager in Toshiba Machine's material supply division, and Hiroaki Tanimura, 51, deputy senior project manager of the company's first engineering department, have been on trial since last Sept 10 on charges of violating foreign exchange and foreign trade laws. The laws ban sensitive exports to communist nations in line with rules of the coordinating committee for exports to communist nations. A convicted violater can be sentenced to up to three years in prison and three million yen ($23,000) in fines. Toshiba Machine, a subsidiary of Toshiba Corp., Japan's second largest electronics maker, is accused of selling $17 million worth of the sophisticated machines to the Soviets, some of them through Norway's state-owned Kongsberg Vapenfabrikk, between 1982 and 1984. US officials have said the machines permitted Moscow to turn out propellers that would make submarines quieter and harder to detect. The prosecution today also demanded a fine of two million yen ($15,380) for Toshiba Machine.

The Tokyo district court set the next trial session for Feb 23 for the defence to make its arguments. The court's three-judge panel is to announce its ruling a few months later.

Overseas investment soars SEOUL, Jan 19. (AP): South Korean firms' new equity investment in overseas business projects in 1987 soared to $397 million, up 130 per cent from 1986, the Finance Ministry reported today. Ministry officials said South Korean capital investment abroa including investment in earlier years, totaled $966 million for 534 projects at the end of 1987. Besides Korea's growing current account surplus, the officials said the sharp rise resulted from several big projects as well as a rise of investment, notably the United States, designed to circumvent trade protectionism. Of the 1987 investment, the biggest portion, $177 million, went to the United States, an increase of 123.7 per cent from the previous year. Southeast Asia was second with $131 million and the Middle East was third with $71 million. No year earlier figures were given

S.Arabia suspends tariff increases

RIYADH, Jan 19, (Reuter): Saudi Arabia, in its second major climb-down from a new austerity programme, said yesterday it had suspended increases in tariffs and the price of government services. A statement issued after the weekly cabinet meeting said new import tariffs on medical equipment would be lifted and newspapers, magazines and medicines would be exempt from tariffs altogether. It also said increases in the cost of government services, including electricity, water, airport and medical-services, were being reconsidered, while fares on the national-airline Saudia would return to previous levels. On January 5, King Fahd personally revoked a plan to tax foreigners after a huge and unprecedented display of anger among the country's four million expatriate workers. Yesterday's statement, carried by the Sandi Press Agency, said: "In King Fahd's desire to provide adequate time to study these matters thoroughly before issuing (the increases) if need be, the King ordered formation of a higher committee for this purpose." Saudi Arabia, hit be declining oil revenues, has had to draw heavily on foreign reserves built up during the early 1980s to finance a series of budget deficits.

Its 1988 budget, amounced on December 30, introduced a series of measures aimed at cutting costs and increasing revenues. Import duties of 12 per cent were levied across the board, with only certain foodstuffs exempt, while a 20 per cent charge was posed om imports competing with locally-produced goods.

Details of the increased cost of government services were never officially announced, although the budget statement said they would be raised "within reasonable limits."

U.K. STOCKS LOWER ON JAPANESE TRADE DATA LONDON, JAN 19 - NEWS THAT JAPAN'S TRADE SURPLUS WITH THE U.S. WIDENED DURING DECEMBER CAST A SHADOW OVER SHARES HERE, DEPRESSING PRICES THROUGHOUT TODAY'S SESSION, DEALERS SAID. A WIDELY ANTICIPATED SELL-OFF ON WALL STREET AT ITS 1430 GMT

OPENING TODAY HELPED PUSH THE FTSE 100 SHARE INDEX TO TODAY'S LOW OF 1,757.6 BY 1446 GHT. BY 1518 GMT, THE INDEX HAD ONLY JUST STRUGGLED ABOVE THAT LOW TO TRADE 30.7 POINTS DOWN AT 1,759.3. THE JAPANESE TRADE SURPLUS NEWS SENT THE DOLLAR LOWER ON THE

FOREIGN EXCHANGES AND CAUSED NERVOUSNESS AMONG THE LEADING DOLLAR EARNERS HERE. ICI GAVE UP 37P TO 1,110, GLAXO FELL 20P TO 1,018 WHILE FISONS FELL 10P TO 257 AND SHELL 23P TO 1,025. U.K. ECONOMIC DATA FOR NOVEMBER HAD A LESS MARKED EFFECT ON

SHARES THAN THE JAPANESE TRADE FIGURES BUT WERE STILL A DEPRESSING FACTOR TODAY, DEALERS SAID. U.K. INDUSTRIAL PRODUCTION FELL A PROVISIONAL 0.35 PCT IN NOVEMBER 1987 AFTER AN UPWARD REVISED 1.3 PCT GAIN IN OCTOBER, WHILE MANUFACTURING OUTPUT FELL A PROVISIONAL 0.5 PCT IN MOVEMBER AFTER RISING AN UPWARD REVISED 1.4 PCT IN-OCTOBER.

SOME DEALERS SAID REVERSALS FROM THE PREVIOUS UPWARD TRENDS COULD BE WORRYING IF REFLECTED IN FUTURE ECONOMIC FIGURES. A DECLINE IN DOMESTIC PRODUCTION COULD MEAN U.K. CONSUMERS DEMAND MORE IMPORTS, THUS STOKING UP FRESH INFLATIONARY PRESSURES.

London Gold

LONDON, JAN 19 - GOLD BULLION TRADED QUIETLY TODAY, WITH LITTLE FRESH INVESTOR INTEREST SEEN, ALTHOUGH PRICES ENDED SLIGHTLY FIRMER, DEALERS SAID.

GOLD CLOSED NEAR ITS HIGHS AT 477.00/477.50 DLRS AN OUNCE, IDENTICAL TO THE OPENING, AND COMPARED WITH ITS PREVIOUS 475.50/476.00 CLOSE.

TODAY'S NARROW HOVEMENTS LARGELY REFLECTED THE DOLLAR'S FLUCTUATIONS IN EQUALLY QUIET MONEY MARKETS. BULLION TRADING WAS MOSTLY RESTRICTED TO ROUTINE DEALER ACTIVITY, WITH MANY PARTICIPANTS WAITING FOR FRESH TREMOS TO EMERGE, THEY SAID.

London Money Market

LONDON, JAN 19 - MONEY RATES ENDED LITTLE CHANGED DESPITE U.K. INDUSTRIAL PRODUCTION DATA WHICH SUGGEST THERE IS NO NEED FOR THE AUTHORITIES TO RAISE INTEREST RATES, DEALERS SAID. THEY NOTED THAT A RISE IN BASE RATES HAS BEEN HINTED AT

RECENTLY BY CHANCELLOR OF THE EXCHEQUER NIGEL LAWSON AND BANK OF ENGLAND GOVERNOR ROBIN LEIGH-PEMBERTON, WHO EXPRESSED CONCERN

ABOUT INFLATIONARY PRESSURES IN A RAPIDLY EXPANDING ECONOMY. BUT TODAY'S FIGURES SHOWED THAT INDUSTRIAL PRODUCTION FELL Q.35 PCT IN NOVEMBER, WITH MANUFACTURING OUTPUT DOWN Q.5 PCT,

NEW YORK, Jan 19: Wall Street cut morning losses in half, climbing back after disappointment with a widening Japanese trade surplus and lower than expected IBM earnings sent stocks down 27 points in early trading. The Japanese trade number reduced enthusiasm after a good US figure Friday.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which sunk to 1937 minutes after the opening, recovered to 1947, down 16 points.

Decliners led advances by two to one on volume of 53 mln shares. IBM, the premier blue chip stock, fell 2-7/8 to 114-7/8 after reporting earnings that were in the low end of the estimated range.

TOKYO STOCKS CLOSE DOWN, OFF LOWS, IN THIN TRADE
TORYO JAN 19 - SHARE PRICES CLOSED DOWN IN LIGHT TRADE A
AN UNSTABLE DOLLAR AND UNEASINESS AHEAD OF JAPAN TRADE SURPLU

DATA DAMPENED INVESTOR INTEREST, BROKERS SAID. BUT THEY SAID PRICES FINISHED OFF THEIR LOWS AS THE ACTUAL RELEASE OF THE TRADE FIGURES RELIEVED MARKET TENSION. "THEY HERE NOT AS BAD AS THEY COULD HAVE BEEN, " SAID A FUND MANAGER AT THE BANK OF TOKYO. "NOT GOOD ENOUGH TO MAKE YOU WANT TO BUY, BUT A RELIEF ANYWAY."

THE NIKKE! AVERAGE FELL 12.03 POINTS TO 22,898.17. IT ROSE 306.55 POINTS ON MONDAY. DECLINES LED ADVANCES 1.3 TO ONE IN TURNOVER OF 550 MLN SHARES AGAINST 600 MLN ON MONDAY.

COMMUNICATIONS, SECURITIES HOUSE, BANK, ELECTRONIC RUBBER, PULP/PAPER, RAILWAY/BUS, CONSTRUCTION, INSURANCE AND

ROLLING STOCK SHARES FELL. PHARMACEUTICAL, FOOD, TEXTILE, SHIPPING, NON-FERROUS NETALS AND SERVICE ISSUES ROSE.

JAPAN'S OVERALL 8.60 BILLION DLR DECEMBER TRADE SURPLUS WAS SLIGHTLY HIGHER THAN EXPECTED, BROKERS SAID. BUT THE APPREHENSION PRIOR TO THE NEWS WAS LIMITED, AFTER THE MARKET'S RECENT FOCUS ON THE JANUARY 15TH RELEASE OF U.S. TRADE DATA. THERE WAS NO WORRY OVER TODAY'S DATA, SAID BROKER NORIO

OMACHI OF SANYO SECURITIES. WIT'S NOT ANYTHING NEAR THE BUILD-UP BEFORE THE RELEASE OF

THE U.S. FIGURES," SANYO'S OMACHI ADDED. BROKERS: SAID THE MAIN CONCERN WAS THE DIRECTION IN WHICH THE DOLLAR WOULD HEAD, AS AFTER MONDAY'S 300-POINT BOOST FROM A SURPRISINGLY TRIMMED U.S. NOVEMBER TRADE DEFICIT, THE STOCK MARKET SEEMED LESS NERVOUS THAN THE FOREIGN CURRENCY MARKET

ABOUT THE JAPAN FIGURES. "THERE JUST ISN'T A FEELING THAT IT WOULD HAVE A BIG IMPACT, " A BROKER AT ONE OF THE BIG FOUR JAPANESE BROKERAGES SAID, PRIOR TO THE TRADE DATA RELEASE.

Nomma Securities

WEEK OF JAN. 11 - 15 THE NIKKEI HAS BEEN STRUGGLING BETWEEN 21000 AND 22000 OVER SOM MAJOR CONCERNS. ONE IS THE SHARP RISE OF THE YEM AND ITS SHORT-TERM EFFECT ON CORPORATE EARNINGS. OFFSETTING THIS LAST WEEK WAS THE NEW GOVT. POLICY ALLOWING TOKKIN AND FUND TRUSTS TO WAS THE HER HOLDINGS AT LOWER OF MARKET OR BOOK VALUE, COUNTER-ING FEARS OF SELLOFF FOR ACCOUNTING PURPOSES. THIS WEEK, HOW-EVER, DOLLAR INTERVENTION AND AN IMPROVING ECONOMIC OUTLOOK WIL BUOY THE MARKET. IN CONJUNCTION WITH DECLINING SHORT-TERM INT-EREST RATES, CYCLICALS, E.G. HEAVY INDUSTRY, SHOULD DO WELL.

US offers loan guarantee to Jordan

WASHINGTON, Jan 19, (AP): The US government's Export-Import Bank has offered to guarantee a loan to help Jordan buy $50 million to $70 million worth of US equipment to mine phosphates.

Phosphates are used largely as fertiliser.

The bank said in an announcement distributed over the weekend that the offer was made to meet competition from financing backed by the British and Italian governments.

Details of the offer were not disclosed. Contracts have not yet been awarded, the bank said.

Announcement

The announcement said bank officials had studied the case and ----discussed it with "concerned parties", whom it did not identify.

"Éximbank's board found that on balance and short- and long-term benefits to the US mining equipment manufacturers are likely to outweigh the potential injury to US phosphate producers," the announcement

It quoted the bank's president, John A. Bohn Jr., as saying:

"The closeness of the call between the pros and the cons led us to believe that any further support in the form of a governmentsubsidised loan could not be justified."

It pointed out that Jordan is committed in any case to compete the $90-million project at the Shidija mine of the Jordan Phosphate Mines Co.

Australia's sagging economy gets trade boost

SYDNEY, Jan 19, (Reuter): Australia's economy, caught in the recent world financial turmoil, received a boost with official statistics today showing a significant improvement in the country's trade performance.

The current account deficit, a key economic indicator measuring exports of goods and services. fell to $658 million Australian dollars ($467 million) last month from 831 million dollars ($590 million) in November.

The figures showed the government's budgetary strategy was on track and the economy was recovering steadily after the recent share market crash, financial analysts said.

Market sentiment was given a fillip as exports, mainly in wool. wheat and manufacturing, rose by 15 per cent in December against only a three per cent increase in imports, they said. The Australian dollar, which opened around 71 US cents, rose to 71.15 immediately after the Lloyds Bank chief economist Warren Bird said the local currency was expected stay at the same level in the coming months. Further falls in increst rates were also likely.

Inflation, now running at an annual rate of about eight per cent, also was likely to fall to between seven and seven-anda-half per cent this year, he said.

Economsits warned, however, that Australia still had a long way to go before overcoming its balance of payments and foreign debt problems.

If the present trend continued, the country could end the financial year in June with a current account shortfall of over 12 billion dollars ($8.5 billion), analysts said. In the first half of the year ending June 30 the total deficit was 6.05 billion ($4.29 billion).

Australia owed creditors $40.72 billion at the end of June last year, according to figures released by the Organisation of Economic Cooperation and Development and the Bank for International Settlements yesterday. This would make Australia the third largest debtor nation outside major industrialised countries. The country's debt is surpassed only by Brazil with $88.88 billion and Mexico with $80.71

Dollar sinks and gold rises

US dollar closed lower against major foreign currencies in Europe today following news of a high Japanese trade surplus. Gold bullion prices rose.

The dollar tumbled overnight following the report that Japan's trade surplus widened to $8.6 billion in December from $4.74 billion in November.

Foreign currency dealers said the surplus exceeded most expectations and raised fears that the American trade deficit would widen again in December, reversing the sharp improvement reported for November last

Local banks tell branches not to accept short-term deposits

SOME of the local banks have instructed their branches not to accept large deposits for less than three months in order to avoid accepting of short-term deposits in general.

A local newspaper quoted some bankers as saying that the banks were facing many difficulties is using their funds which consisted mainly of deposits, particularly short term ones.

Rates

They explained that the interest rates for short term deposits among the local banks ranged between three and four per cent and they were paying depositors more than 5 per cent interest. This meant a loss of at least two per cent.

Deposits

Meanwhile, officials of treasury departments at banks said that the sole and traditional means for activating funds were short term deposits, but for the time being the situation had become very difficult, particularly after the directors of local banks gave strict instructions banning the transfer of big amounts from deposits in Kuwaiti dinars to foreign currencies because the directors feared the fluctations in exchange rates would lead to drastic losses.

An official source at one bank said he had tried to convince the board of directors to increase the deposits in foreign banks in order to avoid the losses which may occur but they refused. He added that this refusal was partly due to fear of exchange rate fluctuations and due to compliance with Central Bank instructions banning the flow of funds overseas. Some bankers said that the suggestions for investment in the basket of currencies to avoid fluctuations in the exchange rate were not entertained.

Lipton dried and instant soup was introduced at a seminar held by the local agent of Lipton Tea Company, Mohammed Abdulrahman Al Bahar, at the Kuwait Sheraton Hotel on Monday. Lipton's food manager, Alok Kumar, came specially for the occasion and gave a detailed presentation to the gathering.

There are eight different varieties of the soup, flavoured to suit the tastes of Middle East consumers. Picture shows officials having soup near a display of the various soups.

Philippines must now focus on economy in $202 million in the January-

MANILA, Jan 19, (Reuter): The Philippines has emerged from a tumultuous year with democracy apparently firmly in place after Monday's local elections, but there is no euphoria among analysts over the country's economic prospects.

The economy has turned in its best growth in seven years, but the analysts said recovery may turn into stagnation unless Manila takes firm steps to tackle a daunting array of problems.

They said that with the polls out of the way, no more elections due until 1992, and a two-year process of political consolidation complete, effective management of the still-unsteady economy now topped President Corazon Aquino's agenda.

Expectation "After this the expectation is that the full concentration will be focused on economic recovery," said Aurelio Periquet, president of the Philippine Chamber of Commerce and Industry. "We have no more excuses."

The Philippines' gross national product grew by an estimated 5.1 per cent last year after a small 1.5 per cent growth in 1986, a contraction of 10.6 per

Central Bank Governor Jose Fernandez told a businessmen's meeting last week that much still needed to be done. "As we look ahead there is little doubt in my mind but that the overriding Solita Monsod said earlier this month that debt servicing would gobble up $3.03 billion in 1988, up from 2.9 billion last year, desite the rescheduling of about $14 billion of debt in 1987.

China reimposes price controls on key raw materials

reimposed price controls on key raw materials today, signaling major failures in Beijing's ambitious reform programme to phase out central planning and allow the market to set prices.

Western diplomats expressed dismay at the move, describing it as a serious setback for the reforms. They noted Beijing has worked for two years to free prices of several major commodities as part of a bid to revitalise flagging production in state enterprises. Two sets of regulations setting price ceilings on oil, gas, elec-tricity, steel, timber, coal, rubber, farm chemicals and other major raw materials as well as on shipping, railway and air transport were published by the official Peoples Daily newspaper. The rules were issued by the State Council, China's cabinet.

Curtail

The People's Daily, the Communist Party organ, described the move, which will severely curtail the fluctuation of prices for goods both inside and outside the state plan, as an "important event" in China's economic development.

Under the state plan, the government lays down production quotas for most major industries and purchases the goods at a set price.

But for the last two years, the government has allowed factories to dispose off goods produced over state quota on the free market in an incentive aimed at boosting efficiency and phasing out Soviet-style central plan-

Overall trade growth set to surge ahead

RIYADH, Jan 19, (Kuna): The Saudi-Chinese Joint Commission for economic and technical cooperation began its tenth session here today under the cochairmanship of Saudi Finance and National Economy Minister Mohammad Aba Al Khail and Lee Ta-Hai, the Economic Affairs Minister of the Republic of China (ROC). At the outset of the meeting, on behalf of Custodian of The two Holy Mosques King Fahd Bin Abdulaziz, the people and government of Saudi Arabia. Aba Al Khail expressed condolences on the sad demise of President Chiang Ching Kuo, whom he described as a great leader and a friend of Saudi · Arabia, who did much to enhance relations between the two countries.

Affirmed

He affirmed that this session will be as fruitful as the commission's past sessions.

Aba Al Khail said the economic and technical cooperation agreement between the two countries is now well into its second decade of highly successful operation, adding that it has strengthened the close bilateral ties and provided an excellent framework for mutual benefits. Aba Al Khail said the most visible link in the recent history of economic relations is bilateral trade as in recent years, "we have been each other's fourth largest partner. Growth

"The rapid growth in our mutual trade greatly demonstrates the overall growth in our economic relations. Only 15 years ago, the kingdom's imports from the Republic of China (ROC) totalled only $15 million. In 1987, initial figures indicate that the kingdom bought about $785 million worth of goods from ROC. These imports have long been highly diversified," he

Exports

"Until recently, nearly all the exports of Saudi Arabia to the Republic of China consisted of crude oil. But now, as our new industrial plants move into production, we are also able to diversify our exports. Opportunities now exist for the export of a variety of Saudi products. We would like to increase our exports to the ROC and we trust that this will receive the attention of your government," Aba Ali Khail said. He referred to ROC's assistance to the kingdom's development efforts for more than two decades since the arrival of the first Chinese agricultural experts.

System

"In the medicla field, over 700 Chinese doctors and technicians lend their experience to the kingdom's health care system. In the area of electrical power generation, over 75 engineers from the Taiwan Power Company have assisted the kingdom's electrification programme since 1975. Chinese specialists are working jointly with the kingdom's engineers and specialists on the research and development of various projects of King Abdulaziz City for Science and Technology. In the field of communications, Chinese experts are cooperating with Saudi counterparts in the fields related to highways." Aba Al Khail said. He appreciated efforts of all

Chinese experts, who have participated in the kingdom's development activities. Aba Al Khail said Saudi Arabia has made excellent progress in the expansion and diversification of its private sector, adding that basic infrastructure industries are now wellestablished, providing many opportunities for investment. He added that there are now seven Sino-Saudi joint ventures and that Saudi Arabia offers foreign investors many excellent opportunities for profitable participation in the kingdom's future growth, including a prosperous domestic market, ample ways to achieve this important objective", he said.

Hoped Aba Al Khail said there is much to do in this meeting and hoped that the commission's efforts will be successful in advancing further Saudi-Chinese cooperation.

He proposed formation of four sub-committees to handle the tenth session's agenda and to submit their deliberations to the commission's final session.

Steroids scandal takes bizarre twist

OSLO, Jan 19, (Reuter): A growing scandal over alleged steroid sales in the world of international speed skating took a bizarre new twist today when the central figure in the affair changed his

The Norwegian Sports Confederation had said yesterday that Norwegian speed skater Stein Krosby admitted buying Soviet-made steroids for Western currency from Olympic medal hope Nikolai Gulyayev since 1985, during the latter's visits to Norway. But Krosby, a 21-year-old former body builder, retracted his confession in front of a confederation board of inquiry today after consulting his lawyer.

"During the meeting Krosby gave a different explanation from the one he had given earlier," the confederation said in a statement.

Pressure

Krosby made his original admission last Friday, immediately after the alleged sales first game to light.

"Krosby says he was under pressure ... and that he first had time to think about what had happened in peace and quiet on Monday afternoon," the confederation said. "Our investigation is continuing.

The use of steroids to boost athletic performance is banned by international sports organisa-tions and the International Olympic Committee (IOC).

The Norwegian confederation has asked the Soviet sports committee for help in its probe.

According to the latest statement, Krosby now maintains that he and Gulayev made a verbal agreement last year that Gulayev would supply him with Soviet-made steroids in exchange for Norwegian crowns.

ASIAN SQUASH CHAMPIONSHIP STARTS TODAY

Pakistanis tipped to brush aside opponents

PAKISTANIS are expected to sweep aside their opponents in the 4th Asian Squash Championship which starts in Kuwait today.

The Pakistan squad boasting players of the calibre of Jahangir Khan, the former world champion, Qamar Zaman, Umer Hayat and Magsood Ahmed are expected to occupy all the slots in the singles semifinals and also clinch the team trophy. Deputed

The tournament will officially open today at 6.00 pm at the Al Arabi Sports Club, in the Mansouriya area, under the patronage of HH the Crown Prince and Prime Minister Sheikh Saad Al Abdullah who has deputed Kuwait's Defence Minister Sheikh Salem al Sabah to attend the tournament on his behalf. The Kuwait government has provided all the necessary facilities to ensure the success of the tournament which will end on Jan 30. The president of the Kuwait Squash Federation is himself the head of the organising committee.

The organisers have announced that the opening ceremony will be a simple one. It will include an address by president of the Kuwait Squash Federa-tion, Sheikh Fahd Saad Al Abdullah, followed by an address by the president of the Asian Squash Federation, Dr Edward Jacob, who will arrive in Sheikh Saad's representative will then declare the championship open. After the opening of the tournament, an exhibition match will be played between Kuwait's Tareq Al Uwaish and Qamar Zaman.

Although the championship will officially open in the evening, the matches of the tournament will begin this morning at 10.30 am. 44 matches will be played today at the Salmiya and Kazma squash courts. The important matches to be played today are as follows: Mahmoud Al Jazzaf (Kuwait) vs Antoni Shwa (Singapore) — Kazma Club, Fakher Al Sayed

(Kuwait) vs Jarkis Ali (Lebanon) – Salmiya Club, Saleh Al Shamali (Kuwait) vs Mohammed Al Khaled (Bahrain) - Sal-

Pakistan's Jahangir Khan will also be in action today when he takes on the winner of the match between Lebanese Mohammed Ali and Iraqi Bagdadi at the Salmiya Jahangir is expected to spend the minimum time against opponents from the other countries. The only competition that Jahangir can expect will come from his own countrymen. Qamar Zaman is a good exponent of the game but his age, 37 years, will be a factor against him if he runs into the superbly fit Jahangir or Umer. Umer has lately been showing an excellent form in various tournaments around the world and is capable of producing an upset if he settles into his game quickly. Maqsood Ahmed, although not yet in the class of Jahangir, has gained respect from the world's top players due to his speed and deftly executed drop

The director of the tournament, Sulaiman Al Randi, announced yesterday that the 14 participating teams had been divided into four groups for the team event.

Group One: Pakistan, Bahrain, Oman and Lebanon. Group Two: Singapore, Sri Lanka, Hong Kong and Iraq.

Group Three: India, Jordan and Palestine. Group Four: Kuwait,

Malaysia and Bangladesh. Group Two looks the toughest with strong teams from Sin-gapore and Hong Kong. One of these two teams is expected to move into the next round.

Upset From the other groups Pakistan, Malaysia and India should move into the semifinals, barring some upset in Group Three.

Sulaiman Al Randi also announced vesterday that there would be no entrance fee for the preliminary matches. A nominal fee of 250 fils and half dinar would be charged for the semifinals and finals. The tickets will be available at the Regency Palace
